Dan Abnett, Andy Lanning : Heroes for Hire by Abnett Lanning: The Complete Collection before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Heroes for Hire by Abnett Lanning: The Complete Collection:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Ups and downs with a rotating roster. By Brian Reaves This series, much like the old "Secret Defenders" series, allowed Marvel to grab some great background heroes and toss them in with some A-listers for some fun. The rotating roster (with the exception of Misty Knight and Paladin) make sure every issue has new flavor and feel. Heroes like Moon Knight, Ghost Rider, Spider-Man, and (very briefly) the Punisher team up with lesser-knowns like the Shroud, Stingray, and Silver Sable. I love this type of book and the story line of taking down an Atlantean drug ring started it off nicely. There are a couple of detours with a "Fear Itself" crossover and a "Spider-Island" crossover, before the series picks up again with "Villains for Hire". That's where things lag considerably for a while, though the payoff at the end makes it worth reading. I really wish this version of "Heroes for Hire" could have continued on, but Abnett and Lanning did a spectacular job of giving us a great collection here.

"Hello, hero, are you for hire?" With those words, Misty Knight enlists streetwise vigilantes to tackle the jobs no other super-team will. When she calls, people listen - including Falcon, Black Widow, Ghost Rider, Silver Sable, Moon Knight and Paladin! But while Misty takes control, the Puppet Master might be pulling strings of his own. Can Iron Fist and the Punisher help her uncover the truth? The events of Fear Itself and Spider-Island call for some serious street-level do-gooding - luckily Misty's little black book is crammed full of costumed contractors like Spider-Man, Black Panther, Satana, Shroud and Daimon Hellstrom! But when the manipulative Purple Man unleashes his Villains for Hire, she'll need a whole new recruitment policy: Fight fire with fire!
