Jerrica Benton creates her alter ego Jem with the use of a hologram program named Synergy. Along with her sisters Kimber, Aja and Shana, they become a colorful musical girl group. Their adventures were always truly outrageous and usually involved them battling against the sinister Misfits. This comic stays true to Jem. While it has a few changes, they are all for the better. The characters are more fleshed out and given some depth. Even the Misfits have some personality besides being just the villains. Who anyone who loved the show or enjoys bright, poppy adventures, this comic is for you.

By Tara O'Shea As a CRAZY obsessive JEM fangirl, I was SO EXCITED when I heard this book was in the works. And it exceeded all of my expectations. The updates to the story to bring it to a new, 21st century audience are grounded in the same character dynamics and complex relationships between women as the original. I read it cover to cover in a single night, and then flipped back to the beginning and read it again, to catch all the stuff I'd missed! I particularly love Kimber and Stormer, reframing Jem and Pizzazz' rivalry in ways that really give so many fantastic story opportunities, and the new additions to the JEM universe like Blaze!

By Rain W. While at first I wasn't sure what to expect with this newly rebooted series, my fears were easily quelled when I saw the expressive artwork from Sophie Campbell. All of the characters have been updated with diverse body types and personalities. While not the same as the original cartoon it's a fresh take on a beloved franchise. Storywise we're introduced to different dynamics than the show as well and that's ok. I found myself like the Misfits more. I definitely want to get the next trade.

"Exuberantly colorful all-ages tribute to girl power" - The New Yorker

Meet Jerrica Benton a girl with a secret. She and her sister Kimber team with two friends to become... JEM AND THE HOLOGRAMS! But what does it mean to be JEM today? Fashion, art, action, and style collide in Jem and the Holograms: Showtime!
