Joe Orlando, Al Fedstein, Ray Bradbury : The Thing From The Grave And Other Stories before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Thing From The Grave And Other Stories:

Joe Orlando and Al Feldstein adapt Bradbury, preach about drug addiction in The Monkey, and more in our latest EC Artist volume, which also includes a 3-D story that has never been reprinted (in 2-D). This special collection features more than 30 EC classics from the pages of Tales From the Crypt, The Haunt of Fear, The Vault of Horror, Shock

Suspense Stories, Impact, and Crime Suspense Stories. Of special note is all of Orlando's Panic stories, including parodies of Mother Goose, TV commercials, and soap operas. Black and white illustrations throughout.

About the Author Joe Orlando (1927-1998; Will Eisner Hall of Fame, 2007) was a prolific illustrator, writer, editor, and cartoonist who rose from artist at EC Comics to vice president at DC Comics. Ray Bradbury was born in Waukegan, Illinois, in 1920. Growing up during the Great Depression, Bradbury began writing at the age of 11. Unable to join the military in World War II due to his poor eyesight, he began publishing science fiction stories. In 1947 he married Marguerite McClure and they had four daughters. His career as a writer included such notable works as Fahrenheit 451, The Martian Chronicles, and I Sing the Body Electric. Primarily known for his successes in science fiction, Bradbury also worked on various horror and mystery stories, as well as screenplays and television scripts. During his lifetime he received numerous awards, including a Pulitzer in 2007. Bradbury passed away in 2012.
